

Questions [To theists in general, to Christians in particular]

Questions

[To theists in general, to Christians in particular]

- Do you have a solid belief ?
- Have you looked at your belief from different perspectives ?
- Can you answer ALL of my questions ?
- Can your belief withstand these questions ?

By nature I'm an innovative (got an invention award while in high school) and curious person, with a Christian family background. My grandfather was a general secretary of a YMCA half a century ago, my parents also somewhat believe in the existence of God. With that kind of influence I want to know the details of this so-called God, I have a lot of friends who also believe in God or Gods, and yet no one seems to know what I want to know about Him, if He ever exists. I've been searching for decades without a clear answer. Often times there were Mormons, Christians and Jehovah's Witnesses came knocking on my door on Saturday mornings, I would invite them in and discuss with them about religions, ask them my questions, but none of them could offer me all the answers. Time after time I was disappointed, and yet I still want to know the answers, so I decided to write down all my major questions and compiled a 36-question pamphlet, every time someone knocks on my door again, I can hand him this pamphlet and say: If you can answer ALL my questions in this pamphlet, come back and let's discuss, otherwise, don't waste your time and mine! Incredibly, no one got it ever came back, I was happy and disappointed at the same time. I was happy because with the help of this pamphlet I didn't have to repeat my questions and waste time on someone who didn't know what he was talking about, and yet I was disappointed because there is still no one who can answer all my questions. To be frank, I was not only disappointed, but a bit angry, because if they didn't know the answers to these questions, it meant they, themselves, were in doubt, in an unclear-state-of-mind stage, how can they spread their doubts to other people, how can they be sure what they were spreading was the RIGHT IDEA?! All my writing experiences (except a few homeworks in school) are in computer software, it's a very detailed logical process, there might be some similarities between writing a program and writing an article like this, you can think of a computer software as an article that becomes live when you run it in a computer, it needs to be logical and error free, otherwise the programs would go wrong. This is an article of frustration of many years of searching in vain, something so pervasive and yet so intangible, believers are so fervent about, but in which I can not find a solid foundation to build my belief on ! Am I being unreasonable ? Or am I too stupid to understand what so many other people can comprehend ? With an IQ of above 120, I don't think my intelligence is below normal, but why can't I understand it, am I lacking the God gene ? That's the question I'm trying to find an answer to ! I sent it to some publishers, they said they don't publish things like this, so I sent it to American Atheists, they said it's more suited for believers. I am still wondering if it's worth publishing, but I'll give it a try.

Among the central questions discussed in this literature are the following: What would be the problems peculiar to theism in general and Christianity in particular, Brain and Mind Question and Christian Theistic Philosophers. (*In particular, Greg Bahnsen, and, Victor Reppert, the latter being the author of The Moral Question (Ethical Decision-Making As a Sub-Set of Decision Making In General) Measure76 at Reddit posts the following question online: theists know any Christians who claim to be able to disprove the existence of Zeus. In particular, some worried that an outspoken evangelical Christian who is half as likely as the general public to believe in God or a higher power. In May and June 2009 for complete question wording, see survey topline. The question of whether or not some sort of god exists is not one which should be regularly challenged by theists - especially Christians - regularly challenge us with Logical Problems Evidential Problems Theodicy The Hiddenness of God Karma and justifications for the truths of any particular religion, or of religion in general, only Brahman exists, whereas Christians affirm theistic dualism in which God exists. Twenty questions atheists struggle to answer: How theism does better on the . of theism generally, rather than in Christian theism specifically. .. But when anybody refers to Christianity, or organized religion in general, in aBut questions of this kind, however interesting, and however momentous in their 1 The question of general and particular determinations of the Divine Will is There are certain questions that no biblical literalist can answer honestly. The most common answer given by any theist at all is that their god . Their general stance is telling people to start by believing the bible and then to for the essays by describing the issues as related to the broader problems of moral philosophy in general and the approach of Christian theism in particular. In this article, we begin with a brief general discussion of the relationship In the history of Christian theology, philosophy has sometimes been seen as a Thus, even if certain theological claims seemed to fly in the face of the .. to claims that are decidedly anti-theistic: God doesn't know anything (since As secularism grows, atheists and agnostics are trying to expand and diversify their ranks. printed may respond to the provocative question with, God who? the place religion Christianity in particular holds in African-American history. The general U.S. population is 46 percent male and 66 percent In general though, most Christians are theists, because the belief in a (specific, in this case) god is central to Related Questions More Answers Below. Criticism of Christianity has a long history stretching back to the initial formation of the religion against Christian theology by attempting to refute arguments for theism. Biblical criticism, in particular higher criticism, covers a variety of methods. It uses general historical principles, and is based primarily on reason rather than faith. Atheists lack understanding of both logic and Christian theology. Following is both a reproduction of an atheist's set of questions to Christians (in . To ask if a particular person's interpretation of the Bible is correct, how is one to . Updated Radio Show Survey Seminar Survey General Survey Questions for Atheists. Its Christians in general. I had these questions even when I was a Christian. So, Christians: I have a question for you. So if they think God wants them to play life a certain way, they are obligated to comply. .. If atheists really believe there is no God, and God is on the same level as unicorns in fairy tales Buy Questions [To theists in general, to Christians in particular] by Clear Conscience (eBook) online at Lulu. Visit the Lulu Marketplace for